Friday Bridge Club
The Friday Bridge Club met last Friday with Mrs. J. G. Moir on West Pine street, Mrs. H. A. Lane making the highest score. Mrs. Moir's guests, besides the members of the club, were Mesdames J. H. Rogers, A. W. Pollard, George Shepard, and C. M. Cotton. The club will not meet Friday on account of the chautauqua.

Lewis Holt, an optician of Eau Claire, Wis., arrived in Deming last week with a view to locating here and engaging in irrigated farming. He has a new pump known as an automatic pump, which he will try out on his farm.

The state land office has issued a quantity of interesting literature.

way of appropriating money for reasonable charities and projects to benefit of the community. The board has let out work at higher prices than could have been secured on a competitive basis just to serve personal or political ends. Mr. Phillips has always fought against this petty way of squandering the public monies.

The county prisoners would not now be kept in other counties at the expense of Luna county, had the board heeded Mr. Phillips. He left the meeting in disgust at which plans were presented for an elaborate and over-expensive county prison, because he found himself standing alone in the interests of the tax payers. The rest of the commission had gone on some sort of a joy riding trip at the expense of a large jail-building firm to examine county jails in other states. Mr. Phillips refused to go on the trip because he realized that in one form or another the firm paying the bills would expect compensation in one form or another. It is so easy to handle other persons' money without due care for economy, because a board that has taxing powers find it so easy to raise the rate to cover injudicious expenditures. The Democratic voters of Luna county have a fine opportunity to fire a big gun in their own defense by going into the primaries and voting for J. W. Phillips.

THE CHAUTAUQUA SPIRIT

In spite of the great discouragement which the chautauqua boosters met, the opening night found more than the required number of tickets sold. This is the first year that Deming has enjoyed the assembly, but it is safe to predict, in view of the success this year, that it is destined to become a Luna county institution. With some of the best numbers yet to come, it can now be said that the talent is all that it was represented to be.

Some have argued that the chautauqua takes money out of the city and should not, therefore, be encouraged. It is true that it costs money, but the educational features are worth more than is paid for them. The children of Deming will derive a great benefit from the opportunity afforded. Another advantage is the bringing into the city of many persons in this trade territory that become acquainted and form business and social relations that are pleasant and profitable. The display of culture is bound to have a refining influence on the community. In this season of wild rumors and vague alarms, it is good to feel the soothing influence exerted by the artists that aim to instruct and amuse.

HOLT BACK ON THE JOB

Beginning with this issue Willard E. Holt joins forces with Clyde Earl Ely in the management of the Deming Graphic. Mr. Holt needs no introduction to Deming and Luna county citizens. For several years Mr. Holt labored as editor of the Graphic in the upbuilding of the community. To further serve himself and his people he is satisfied that he can find no better instrument than the Graphic. He brings a new element of strength to the publication.

He just dropped into the office one day and refused to budge from the sacred editorial chair which he had turned over to Mr. Ely four years ago. There will now be two chairs in the sanctum.

WASHINGTON YIELDS

The outstanding feature of the Scott-Oregon agreement, if the news dispatches are not inaccurate, is that the administration has yielded to the demands of the Mexican de facto government in every essential detail. Whether or not this course is wise can not be judge by the immediate results, but will be determined by the outcome of the train of events of which this may be an unimportant part. The decision to yield to the Mexican demand should cause no surprise, because it is in exact harmony with the administration foreign policy. President Wilson has determined to go before the people next November with a record of having kept the country at peace. It is certain that this policy does appeal to a certain large number of Americans.

The Americans will have sixty days to leave Mexico. But for that matter, withdrawal really began with the retreat of Major Tompkins' command from Parral, the advanced columns being gradually drawn into Namiqipa. From thence the base will probably be moved to Colonia Dublan and then to the border. General Scott secured nothing from Oregon but adequate time to withdraw the American forces and some facilities for supplying them while the withdrawal is in progress.

NO WAR WITH GERMANY

The German government, according to recent news dispatches, will go to great lengths to placate America in the matter of the unlawful use of the submarine. It is said that already the submarine commanders have orders to suspend the practices complained of in the American note until the issues are definitely settled. Washington, however, is a little anxious because of the delay in receiving an answer to its ultimatum. There seems to be a basis for the prediction of a peaceful settlement of the controversy.

THE IRISH REVOLT

The Irish revolt was put down quickly and with firmness, the leaders being executed or in prison awaiting trial for high treason. It seems that the chief secretary to Ireland and many of the Irish leaders in parliament, among them John Redmond, underestimated the power of the Sinn Fein movement to the extent that it spread and broke before they were prepared to consider measures for preventing it. The most drastic measures were necessary to stamp out the flame of rebellion, though it seems that the government went at the work with a view to use as little harshness as possible. The sad story of Ireland has added another chapter written in blood and tears. The event has cast a gloom over the whole of Britain. It is a severe blow to those that were fighting for home rule and it puts and end to the ambitions designs of those that hoped to see Ireland a free and independent nation.

JOHN HUND IS OUT

John Hund, one of the first to demonstrate the possibilities for agriculture in the Mimbres Valley, has again placed his name before the people and asks to be nominated on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for county commissioner from the second district. Having been a member of the board, the public is in a position to judge of his qualifications to hold the office. It would be presumptuous for the Graphic to attempt an introduction of Mr. Hund to the citizens of Luna county, because he is almost an institution in this community and his integrity and honesty of purpose is very well known.

A GOOD OMEN

There is hope for us and for our political system when sound business men like Frank L. Nordhaus offer themselves for public offices carrying as little money compensation as that of county commissioner. When you boost his candidacy you do yourself and every tax payer in this county a mighty big favor.

Bridge Party

Among the beautiful social events of the week was the bridge party given Monday evening at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Moir, when Mesdames Moir, Thurmond, Stecker, and Miss Una Bedichek entertained jointly, complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rogers. The artistic Moir home was elaborately decorated with home grown roses of various hues placed at every available space throughout the rooms. There were nine tables of bridge. Mrs. George Shepard and Miss Mary Mahoney cut for the prize, an artistic jardiniere filled with beautiful roses, which was won by Mrs. Shepard. Messrs. H. Jarvis Williams and "Buz" Peyton tied for the handsome mens' prize, Mr. Williams winning the cut. It was a very fine set of evening studs and buttons. Mrs. Rogers was presented with a silver souvenir spoon of Deming and Mr. Rogers was presented with a silver bag tag. At the conclusion of the games a delicious supper was served and a large number of guests enjoyed the evening.

Miss Jessie Woodward has been honored by being appointed one of the members of the executive board of the State Abstracters Association of Texas. The association convenes in Austin on June 20 and Miss Woodward will leave for the Texas capital to attend the meeting.

During the months of January and February there were 108 inquiries received at the chamber of commerce, and during the month of March 77. Instead of injuring Deming, the trouble at Columbus seems to have aroused increased interest in this section.

The following have recently become members of the chamber of commerce: W. A. McCreary, Olin Featherston, Deming Steam Laundry, Weaver Brothers Vulcanizing Co., C. C. Rogers, W. C. Simpson, Dr. C. L. Betts, Elsie Furness Co., W. L. Samuels and Son, Washburner and Flahive, Jitney Cafe, and J. F. Doderer.
